

While visiting Kaliningrad, Russia, you go to see the bridges which inspired the famous Seven Bridges of Königsberg problem. The landscape has changed over the years: there are now more islands and more bridges, and the bridges are painted in three colors. There's also a new challenge attached to them.

You must walk each bridge exactly once.
A red bridge must always be followed by a green one, a green bridge by a blue one, and a blue bridge by a red one, unless the bridge is the last one in the walk.

